

A resource for people around the world with working dogs and service dogs

Working Like Dogs is dedicated to celebrating working dogs, including assistance dogs, around the world. Working Like Dogs is a resource, providing people with practical information, current trends, and products to meet their working dog needs.

Marcie Davis, the founder of Working Like Dogs, was partnered with her first service dog in 1993. At that time, she couldn't find much information about human-dog partnerships. Then in 2000, when she was teamed with her second service dog, she began searching again, and still there just wasn't much information out there. So she wrote a book, Working Like Dogs: The Service Dog Guidebook. At the same time, she started an organization, also called Working Like Dogs, to share all the information she had learned and to create a supportive community for people teamed with working dogs and industry professionals.

From there, she started a blog, and then a podcast. The Working Like Dogs blog continues to share information ranging from ayurveda for dogs to assistance dogs in the workplace, and puppyraising to aging dog. Dog nutrition, dog training, public interaction, traveling with your dog, dog health, dog supplies and equipment—you can read and learn about it on the Working Like Dogs blog.

In each episode of the Working Like Dogs podcast on Pet Life Radio, guests talk with Marcie about dogs—their work with them, how to keep them healthy, how to train them, books they've written about them, and more. Working Like Dogs radio guests have included animal advocates such as Betty White, Dr. Marty Becker from Good Morning America, as well as Dog Fancy editor, Ernie Slone, and American Humane Association CEO, Dr. Robin Ganzert. With guests Marcie has talked about sled dogs, military working dogs, herding dogs, therapy dogs, assistance dogs, conservation dogs, airport dogs, search and rescue dogs, and many other types of working animals.

Working Like Dogs also offers services for Assistance Dog Organizations and Individuals. One-on-one coaching, Leaders of the Pack groups, and online courses are just some of the learning opportunities available. Marcie is also a lively and knowledgeable speaker, with expertise on a number of topics.

Learn more about Working Like Dogs at www.workinglikedogs.com
Connect with Marcie at www.workinglikedogs.com/contact-us

About Marcie Davis

Marcie Davis is a transformation agent, thought leader, businesswoman, public speaker, and assistance dog advocate. Marcie has been paraplegic for more than 40 years and has been partnered with service dogs for more than twenty years. She uniquely understands the business practices of running a successful organization and the client perspective of living effectively with an assistance dog. She is the founder of International Assistance Dog Week, the author of Working Like Dogs: The Service Dog Guidebook, and the host of the Working Like Dogs radio show on Pet Life Radio.